2. The papers forwarded indicate that a Red Cross request concerning the serious illness of [REDACTED] father, who resides in Washington, D. The file further indicates, at paragraph 8 of the memorandum of 11 October 1955 from Chief, FE, to DD/S:

"According to existing regulations it was not possible to authorize [REDACTED] travel, as the travel of a dependent wife is predicated on her sponsor's travel. To be returned to the United States under the auspices of [REDACTED]'s parent service application would have to have been made through the Red Cross for transportation by military aircraft on a "space available" basis. Due to the emergency of the situation [REDACTED] traveled to Washington, D. C. by first available commercial means and subsequently returned to the [REDACTED] at her own expense."

3. Although reimbursement for an Agency employee could be accomplished at such time as the employee himself traveled on home leave, such is not possible for a military detail. As indicated above, travel of the dependent is predicated on travel of the sponsor and could only be accomplished at Government expense through the military on a "space available" basis.
